Northern Ireland
Multiple Deprivation
Measures 2017

National Statistics status means that official statistics meet the highest standards of trustworthiness, quality and public value.

All official statistics should comply with all aspects of the Code of Practice for Official Statistics. They are awarded National Statistics status following an assessment by the Authority's regulatory arm. The Authority considers whether the statistics meet the highest standards of Code compliance, including the value they add to public decisions and debate.

It is NISRA's responsibility to maintain compliance with the standards expected of National Statistics. If we become concerned about whether these statistics are still meeting the appropriate standards, we will discuss any concerns with the Authority promptly. National Statistics status can be removed at any point when the highest standards are not maintained, and reinstated when standards are restored.

Measures of spatial distribution of deprivation have been developed and used in Northern Ireland since the 1970s, and have played a central role in terms of informing the targeting of resources to the most deprived areas in Northern Ireland.

The purpose of this booklet is to introduce the latest set of spatial deprivation measures (NIMDM 2017), which replace the current measures. As in other parts of the UK, the new measures have been updated using the same broad methodological approach since 2001, but have taken advantage of new and better data sources. As in previous iterations, the NIMDM 2017 provide information for 7 distinct types of deprivation, known as domains, along with an overall multiple deprivation measure (MDM). The NIMDM 2017 comprises of 38 indicators in total.

The NIMDM 2017 provide a mechanism for ranking areas within Northern Ireland in the order of the most deprived to the least deprived. However, they do not quantify the extent to which one area is more or less deprived than another.

In considering the relative ranks of areas, it is important to acknowledge that there will be:

- Areas which have been ranked as the most deprived, which have people living there who may not be regarded as deprived; and
- Areas which have been ranked as the least deprived, which have people living there who may be regarded as deprived.

This summary booklet outlines how the NIMDM 2017 were constructed and how they can and cannot be used. For each domain and the overall MDM, the booklet highlights the 10 most deprived Super Output Areas (SOAs) and shows the distribution of the 100 most deprived SOAs across the 11 Local Government Districts (LGDs). It should be read in conjunction with the supporting information provided on the NISRA and NINIS websites, where the data for all SOAs and domains are available.

How are the NIMDM 2017 measures constructed?

Northern Ireland is split into 890 spatial areas known as Super Output Areas (SOAs), with an average population of around 2,100 people. The number of SOAs in each of the 11 Local Government Districts (LGDs) varies, ranging from 49 in Fermanagh and Omagh to 174 in Belfast. Through interaction with a range of organisations, expert groups and the general public, a total of 38 indicators[1] were identified to capture different types of deprivation while conforming to a number of agreed criteria[2] that had to be met.

Distinct types, or domains, of deprivation are made up from one or more indicators. The 7 domains of deprivation are:
- Income Deprivation Domain
- Employment Deprivation Domain
- Health Deprivation & Disability Domain
- Education, Skills & Training Deprivation Domain
- Access to Services Domain
- Living Environment Domain
- Crime & Disorder Domain

The indicators in each domain were analysed to produce a domain specific deprivation ranking of the 890 SOAs in Northern Ireland, from 1 (most deprived) to 890 (least deprived).

The ranks of the 7 domains were weighted and combined, to provide a ranking of multiple deprivation (MDM) for the 890 SOAs.

Multiple Deprivation Measure 2017
Ranked from 1 the most deprived area...

... to 890 the least deprived area.

How can the NIMDM 2017 be used?

What the NIMDM 2017 can be used for

For each individual domain of deprivation and the overall MDM, the rankings can be used to:

✔ Explore the relative deprivation of small geographical areas by comparing them with each other
✔ Explore which small geographical areas are the most or least deprived
✔ Examine the spatial distribution of small geographical areas that are the most or least deprived, however defined
✔ Explore which small geographical areas have joined, left or remained in the most or least deprived areas over time

This can be done for Northern Ireland as a whole, or for each individual Local Government District or for other large geographies.

What the NIMDM 2017 cannot be used for

✗ Identifying deprived individuals or groups of people – these are area based spatial measures
✗ Quantifying the extent to which a small geographical area is deprived – they provide relative rankings of areas
✗ Quantifying the extent to which one area is more or less deprived than another – they provide relative rankings of areas
✗ Assessing how absolute deprivation in a small geographical area has changed over time – they provide a spatial ranking at a single point in time
✗ Measuring affluence – lack of deprivation is not the same as being affluent
✗ Undertaking UK comparisons – each UK country has a different set of indicators, time periods, domains and domain weights.

Listed below are a number of improvements made in this update of the deprivation measures.

Income Deprivation Domain:
Using income data instead of benefit data

Employment Deprivation Domain:
Including people with no income from employment, nor benefits associated with employment deprivation

Health Deprivation & Disability Domain:
Including people on multiple and repeat prescriptions to reflect complex and prolonged health needs

Access to Services Domain:
Using data relating to travel times to a wider variety of services by both private and public transport and access to broadband

Living Environment Domain:
New indicators on energy efficiency, road quality, flood risk, over crowding and suitability of housing for the disabled

Crime & Disorder Domain:
Including an additional indicator relating to theft

MDM compared with individual domains

The 7 individual deprivation domains contribute to the MDM according to their weights. While the MDM provides an overall measure, it may mask some interesting and important variation in the domains.

NISRA encourages users to consider both the Multiple Deprivation Measure and individual domains, especially when targeting specific types of deprivation, or choosing the tools to improve overall deprivation.

The circles below represent the 100 most deprived areas on the overall MDM and each of the 7 domains, and show the extent to which they overlap. The overlap of two circles represents the number of areas that are in the 100 most deprived areas according to the MDM, as well as in a domain-specific 100 most deprived areas. For example:

- The overlap is greatest for the Employment Deprivation Domain, sharing 83 areas with the MDM
- The Income Deprivation Domain shares 61 areas with the MDM
- The overlap is smallest for the Access to Services Domain, which shares 4 areas with the MDM

"NICVA finds the multiple deprivation indicators useful and helpful. We actively encourage voluntary and community organisations to make use of the data to support their work in areas challenged by deprivation.

We would really encourage organisations not just to focus on the multiple deprivation measure alone but to explore all the domain data available, as they will better highlight very particular issues. This approach will help organisations prioritise key aspects of intervention, and develop activities and services that fight deprivation.

Advancements in technology and data collection mean that government should be able to increase the frequency of updates to the indicators. We would strongly encourage this, so that a steady flow of continuous and dynamic data to support evidence-based policy making and service delivery can be effectively utilised."

Seamus McAleavey, Chief Executive NICVA

The Multiple Deprivation Measure (MDM) combines the 7 deprivation domains to rank areas based on multiple types of deprivation.
